

Treasurer's Report

Hello everyone,

Nothing much has happened since my last monthly report, so consequently the bank balance has not altered much. I think the next few months will have more activity and therefore my reports won't be so dull. As the Treasurer, my mind is only interested in the money side. Hope we have a good attendance in July, as usual it should be a lot of fun.

Hoping to see you all on 13th July next. Shirley.

Carer's Report

Hi every one,

Firstly, our deepest sympathies to Suzanne and Stan Allen. Suzanne's mother passed away at the end of May. Our thoughts are with you both and your families.

Vincent Toro was admitted to hospital in a severe condition a few weeks ago and even though he is back home he is still not in the best of health.

Eddie Said had his procedure and the results were good. Which was great news.

Lastly, congratulations to Stan and Jill Simmons on the marriage of their son. It's nice to hear some good news.

Take care, good health to you all. Annette

Korny Korner. Hope this cheers you up and takes the chill off Winter.

An Irishman went to London for a visit to the zoo. While there, he saw a man with an elephant act. The man claimed the elephant could look at person and tell that person's age. The Irishman was very sceptical and said so, in no uncertain terms. The man had the elephant look at a small boy and the elephant stamped its foot 9 times. "Is that right?" he asked the boy. "Oh yes." the boy said. The Irishman was very loud, in his not believing that this was true. The man asked the elephant to tell the ages of several people, and each time the elephant stamped his foot and the people said he was correct. The Irishman got even louder and more abusive toward the man. Finally the man could take it no longer and wagered the Irishman that the elephant could look at him and tell him his age. The Irishman took him up on the wager. The elephant looked real close at the Irishman, turned around, raised his tail and cut wind like you wouldn't believe, turned back around and stomped his foot twice. Where upon the Irishman stumbled back and with a sound of disbelief in his voice cried, "BeGabbers, He's right...Farty-two!"

Who are we and what do we do?

The “Fairhearts, Fairfield and District branch of Heart-Support Australia (HSA) are a support group for people who have heart related problems, as well as their carers and families. We have a strong commitment to the three words included on the HSA logo which are: Support, Encouragement and Information.

We provide support by having regular monthly meetings on the second Tuesday of every month where we meet with people with similar heart related problems and their carers and families and share our thoughts and offer support to each other. We have a Caring Officer, Annette Dearle, who is available to provide support to our members.*

We provide encouragement by inviting members and their carers to join our walking group and become more active by organizing outings and social events. We have a very healthy social calendar and encourage members and their guest to participate.*

We provide information by inviting guest speakers along to talk on a wide range of topics but particularly heart related issues. We are supported by the Fairfield Hospital Cardiac Rehabilitation Unit and the Coordinator and staff regularly come to talk to our meetings and also come along to some of our social events. If you would like to know more about us, please contact the Fairhearts President, Arthur Boyd on 96047952 or the Publicity Officer Yvonne Simmonds on 96106295*

This newsletter is mailed out to you by Cabra-Vale Diggers Club. The Diggers also sponsor our meetings. The Fairhearts would like to thank The Diggers Club for their support.
